CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION

ARTICLE 26 — ICC/ESOMAR INTERNATIONAL CODE OF MARKETING AND SOCIAL RESEARCH PRACTICE

Reports and other records relevant to a Marketing Research project and provided by the researcher shall normally be for use solely by the client and his consultants or advisers. Whether or not the copyright of the research findings is reserved to the researcher in the Form of Contract for the project, if the client intends any wider circulation of the results of a study either in whole or in part:

- a) The client shall agree in advance with the researcher the exact form and contents of publication or circulation; If agreement on this cannot be reached between client and researcher the latter is entitled to refuse permission for his name to be quoted in connection with the study;
- b) Where the results of a marketing research project are given any such wider circulation the client must at the same time make available the information listed under Article 31 about the published parts of the study. In default of this, the researcher himself is entitled to supply this information to anyone receiving the above mentioned results;
- c) The client shall do his utmost to avoid the possibility of misinterpretation or the quotation of the results out of their proper context.

(Article 31 specifies minimum information to be included in the report, under the headings of background, sample, data collection, and presentation of results.)

METHODOLOGY

This report contains the findings of a Heylen Political Poll, the fieldwork for which was conducted on 2nd February, 1985.

This poll was conducted with N=924 eligible voters, randomly selected from major New Zealand population centres and a selection of small towns representative of population centres of 2,500 people and over. The interviews were conducted face-to-face in respondents' homes, by trained Heylen interviewers.

The maximum margin of sampling error for a poll figure of 50% is estimated to be $\pm 3.3\%$ at the 95% confidence level.

The survey data is weighted on the basis of the 1981 NZ Government Census figures to provide a more accurate representation of the total New Zealand population. The data for party currently supported, government performance and leadership performance is also weighted to ensure that the sample accurately reflects the levels of party support at the last election.

Further details relating to weighting, sampling, and questionnaire design are available on request.
